Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

Machines in the home and elsewhere have largely done away with the chores that boys used to do around the home. Fifty years ago the farm, besides other crops, produced more than fifty per cent of all the boys and girls grown in the United States. Today only a third of the population lives on farms and the population of the entire country has almost doubled in that half century. So what?

The machines which have brought such a large amount of leisure to everybody in this country, relatively large as compared with even a generation ago, have robbed boys and girls of practically all the chores their fathers and mothers did when they were young, and the great proportion of young people, along with their parents, now live in cities, towns or villages, where there just naturally is not much to do outside of school work. It would be a sad condition of affairs were it not for the fact that a number of organizations have been created to take the place of the chores and the jobs around the home and the farm that the boys and girls of a generation ago did.

It was an astonished father, brought up on a farm along with horses and dogs and cattle, who had regarded a horse as just four more legs to help in the daily morning and evening chores, who sent his son to college, and was proudly informed the boy had joined the college O. R. T. C. corps and was learning to ride horseback. "And," said the enthusiastic son, "do you know dad, they are teaching us the Italian seat. Said the old man: "God help us." Here was a lad studying the riding style and knowing nothing about the horse and its ultilitarian uses.

To replace in some degree the home duties and the home training in all kinds of trades and handicrafts that home and even the farm have largely lost, the Scouts were organized, and in lesser degree the De Molay, the Antlers, and other youth organizations, some of them, localized like the Columbia Park Boys Club which Sidney Peixotto enrolled and inspired some twenty five years ago in San Francisco. Some of the organizations are largely social, especially those formed under the sponsorship of fraternal orders, but in the main their purpose is the same, to keep boys busy and happy and growing up to clean manhood and good citizenship.

The scouts alone, as we see it, offer a real alternative to the home chores and the sports that the home and the farm offered before the advent of motor cars and power machinery in the home and on the farm acres. The boy at twelve years of age enrolls in the scouts and there is instantly offered him a wide field for the development of his special talent. For the first time in his life his feet are set upon a road to real achievement in something he is interested in. Definite honors are offered the lad who achieves his goal.

To see boys congregated upon a street corner with nothing to do but "chew the fat", reveals a deplorable condition. So far as talk is concerned, their conversation may be innocent enough, but there is already far too much talk in the world and far too little action. As we see it, the only virtue there is in a war, is that it does call for action. Action is what youth ever craves, as the darky puts it, and action is what boys and girls should have — constructive action in sports or work that will help build character. As a matter of fact most men who do a day's work of any kind today got their habit of work before they were eighteen years old. If men do not get the habit by that time many of them fail to acquire it.

It is important therefore that serious thought be given to this leisure time which practically all boys and girls now have in abundance as the result of the revolutionary changes machines have made in living conditions. The other night the Elks of Nevada City sponsored the institution of an Antlers lodge. Seventeen boys, several of them sons of Elks, were initiated. Most of them were beyond the age when Scout activities normally fill the leisure void. These boys in due time will be accorded certain privileges of the club rooms, the pool and billiard tables and the bowling alleys. They will be able occasionally to put on entertainments and parties under the best of auspices and in a healthy environment. It is a step upon which the Elks lodge, its officers, and the Antlers advisory council can be heartily congratulated. Among all the good work the Elks do, this may prove to be the most important they have done for the community welfare and for future citizenship.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE IS GETTING BUSY

A meeting of the Fourth of July celebration committee was held on Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce room with Charles Leiter presiding. Herbert Skeahan, of the finance committee stated that a survey would be made immediately of the financial situation, with a view to getting a fund for the purpose as soon as possible.

Sheriff Carl Tobiassen, in charge of the parade, reported that only a section of the parade would consist of horse drawn vehicles. Other sections will be devoted to floats, the marching patriotic and fraternal organizations, and other features.

The Veterans of Banner Mountain Post will be in charge of the big dance which is to be given in Armory Hall.

Ted Janiss, chairman of the Whiskerino Club, stated that there are 375 members of the club in Nevada City and 600 in Grass Valley. Today the sale of Whiskerino tickets will be started in practically all of the stores in Grass Valley and Nevada City.

Dr. Walter Hawkins announced that he was preparing a big program of sports for the afternoon of the Fourth in Pioneers Park.

The Nevada City and Grass Valley high school bands will provide plenty of music.

Mrs. Belle Douglas, chairman, Mrs. H. E. Kjorlie and Bill Cain are a committee in charge of sending out letters of invitation to all alumni of the Nevada City high school and all members of the Oakland and Sacramento associations of former Nevada county residents.

A committee to attend to take charge of the general display of the antiques in shop windows was named. It consists of Mrs. George Gildersleeve, Mrs. A. W. Hoge, Mrs. Ida Uren, Mrs. James Penrose, Mrs. Katherine Celio, Mrs. Anna Tucker, and Mrs. Roland Wright.

PRE SCHOOL CHILDREN

The summer round-up or examination of pre-school age children by Dr. Daniel Hirsch of Grass Valley, Wednesday morning, was quite successful although only seven of the 48 were present for the tests. It is presumed the stormy weather of the last few days prevented mothers from taking advantage of this splendid opportunity to have their children examined.

CITY HALL IS 50 PCT. COMPLETE

At the meeting of the city council last evening it developed that the new city hall is nearly 50 per cent complete, according to Architect Shellon's estimate. The original agreement with WPA authorities was that the city should expend approximately $4,700 as its share toward putting up the building, while the WPA would expend approximately $17,500. With the building half completed the city has already been obliged to spend $4,800, or more than it agreed to spend for the whole building. A great deal of uncertainty still attaches to the problem of finding money to complete the building. Despite these extraordinary expenditures attention was called to the fact that financially the city is practically as well aff as it ever has been in recent years.

Since the last meeting of the council several hundred dollars have been paid into the city treasury by property owners who have refunded to the city their share of the sidewalk building costs.

Usually the city is obliged to start buying water from the Nevada Irrigation district, but owing to the late rains the city has not yet begun to purchase water, so this will aid in maintaining a balanced budget.

City Engineer Uren called attention to the fact that a new sewer connection is badly needed adjacent to the "burned district," and this matter received immediate attention. Bills ordered paid by the council were as follows:

WHISKERINOS TO AID PURCHASE OF WATT PARK

The Community Service Council of Grass Valley in sponsoring the redemption of Watt Park has received the cooperation and whole hearted support of all the civic and service organizations of which it is composed. At this particular time the flame of enthusiasm has swept the Whiskerinos who are holding a special dance at Lake Olympia on June 21, the entire proceeds of which will be turned over to the Community Service Council to "Save Watt Park."

In addition the Council is holding a Watt Park Maintenance Day at Watt Park on June 21, there will be games, concession, free camp stew, baseball game between the Grass Valley and Nevada City Whiskerinos, campfire program, amusements, music and worlds of entertainment.

Grass Valley extends an invitation to all Nevada City to join in the program. The next project of the Community Service Council is to back Nevada City in the Fourth of July celebration.

TONOPAH MAN KILLED ON BEAR VALLEY ROAD

The body of Henry Brock, 46, a Tonopah business man, was found Wednesday beside his wrecked sedan, 300 feet below the old Tahoe-Ukiah road near Emigrant Gap.

Dr. Ray Atkinson of Colfax who examined the body, says Brock had been dead about forty eight hours. It is believed his car went off the grade Sunday night or Monday morning.

The body and the wrecked car was discovered by J. C. Martin, a truck driver for the Tahoe Sugar Pine Lumber Company, of Emigrant Gap, Deputy Coroner Francis West of Placer county brought the remains to Colfax where a coroner's investigation was held.

Brock was employed by the Tonopah Club. His car was loaded with slot machines. He was a member of the Eagles Lodge of Kansas City, Mo., and leaves two daughters in England.

Whiskerinos Ladies Night Gala Event At Armory Hall Tonight

Tonight's meeting of bearded men and their ladies will be a gala event in the annals of the Whiskerino club, for it is to be the first ladies night ever staged by Whiskerinos anywhere. There will be professional and amateur entertainment of the mirth quaking kind and after the short business meeting and the entertainment program, there will be a dance with music provided by celebrated jazz specialists.

Prizes will be offered for the ladies attired in the most modish and beautiful costumes of the Argonaut era and it is expected that there will be scores of matrons and maidens attired in the styles that made such picturesque illustrations for Godey's Ladies Book in the years when fashions began to invade the gold questing society of early California.

Many dress shops of Nevada City and Grass Valley are catering to this trade in 49 dress styles and some of the millinery displayed indicates that the art of fashioning hats has not made such a notable latter day advance as one would expect, for these creations of the time of the Civil War have an allure, and "come hither" aspect, that modern creations must go far to equal.

At tonight's meeting of the Whiskerinos and the "slick chins" all ladies are invited regardless of whether they wear 49er costumes or not. For those who do appear in costume, however, there will be several prizes well worth while.

Now that many whiskers have gotten beyond the shoe brush stage, many members of the Whiskerino club are really growing fond of their facial appearance. To same maps a beard is a great improvement, since it can be artificially shaped with a pair of shears to cover up the faults that careless nature committed when molding the face. It is also easier to play poker behind an abundant facial cover, and that is probably why the game was so popular in the early days, when razors were scarce and gold and poker chips were abundant.

It is the function of the Whiskerino club to review the 57 varieties that appear at these whiskerino meetings and to re-introduce those citizens who have lost their identity in the chapparel, so to speak. Christian Anderson will be the "monster" of ceremonies and there will be plenty of new stunts to keep the throngs in a merry mood.

Chamber of Commerce Silver Dinner Tickets Are on Sale Today

The silver anniversary of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce will be celebrated next Tuesday evening with a community dinner, in the National Hotel. The Chamber of Commerce, as everyone knows, is a group of citizens who voluntarily band themselves together to advance the community interests in every way within their power. The Chamber of Commerce within a very short time has grown to a membership of 130 and, as a matter of fact, in view of the rapid growth of Nevada City in population and in business during the last three years, that membership should be doubled very soon. President Fred E. Conner expects to double the membership during his year in office, and among his other busy functions he is a one-man membership committee.

At the dinner next Tuesday night there will be places for 120 Nevada City neighbors, and every one who can possibly be there, ought to reserve their seats immediately after reading this article, for a chamber never amounts to anything in any towns unless it has the whole hearted support of its community.

The chamber has a twenty five year history of things done for the advancement of Nevada City, and at this moment is putting all the energies of its membership back of the three-day Fourth of July celebration to make it something worthy of this city and something to be treasured in the memories of the thousands of visitors who will be here, and a source of pride among the citizens of the community itself.

Judge George L. Jones will be the guest speaker of the evening, and from Sacramento is coming Ellis Purlee, one of California's most entertaining after dinner speakers, whose witty, snappy talks have given him a unique place banqueting history. Mrs. Marian Libby of this city is in charge of the music for the occasion and among other interesting musical numbers for the evening, will be the singing of verses, localized and adapted to present day activities, to the tune of "John Brown's Body." The verses have been written by Mrs. A. Merriam Conner, whose poems have frequently been published not only in the columns of the newspaper but in the better poesy magazines of the United States.

Chairman of the committee in charge of this event is Mrs. Betty Martin West, postmaster, and assisting her are Mrs. Ruby Miller, in charge of decorations, Mrs. Marian Libby, in charge of entertainment, Bill Cain and George Gildersleeve in charge of publicity, Dr. W. H. Reeder and Fred E. Conner in charge of speakers.

Some time today Sheriff Tobiassen assisted by a volunteer committee will call on the business and professional men of this city asking that they reserve seats for themselves and their wives. Considering that practically the entire membership of the chamber is composed of merchants, business men, doctors and lawyers, everyone who can possibly spare the time and the money for this big community dinner undoubtedly will want to purchase tickets for an evening of fun and renewal of social intercourse with old friends and neighbors.

The following will be the musical program under the direction of Mrs. Libby:

Harp solo by Mrs. Grace Raymond.

Soprano solo by Mrs. Charles Bosworth.

Baritone solo by Dr. David Reeder.

Soprano solo by Mrs. Katherine Celio.

Baritone solo by Cecil Schiffner.

Piano selection by Marshall Giselman.

Baritone solo by Carl Libby.

During the dinner the Nevada City high school band will play several numbers on the hotel balcony. It is expected that the choral groups of high school students will also sing under Mrs. Libby's direction.

DRIVING WITHOUT A LICENSE

Wong Han of Nevada City was cited for driving without an operator's license Wednesday when his car figured in an accident that allegedly crowded the car of Peter Delgrosso of Auburn, off the highway near Del Paso park north of Sacramento. Delgrosso's car turned over. He is in the hospital in Auburn with a severe head injury.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lysterup and children left for San Francisco Wednesday to spend a short vacation.

Mr. J. B. Hubbard of Nevada City spent the week end in San Francisco.

June On The Highway

(Contributed)

June is here—the month of brides, of flowers, and ripening fruit, of picnics and swimming and an abundance of good warm sun.

What a pity that tragedy must mar this month, that death and injury must come to many on California's overcrowded highways. Unless this June is different from those of the past several years, there will be 2,500 serious accidents.

Two hundred and thirty persons will be killed. Of these, 177 will be men, 53 women. The lives of ten children less than nine years old will be snuffed out.

Every twelfth crash will be fatal. Every seventeenth auto that piles up will cause death. Of the trucks, more lethal, every eighth that crashes will crash fatally.

They tell us that such wanton waste of lives will happen before this month is out, just as surely as the moon goes around the earth. Instinctively men will rebel at the thought.

Let us hope so. For rebellion transferred into extreme caution on the crowded highways of June could prove the soothsayers wrong.

Without Deliberation

It was taxation without representation that the American colonies rebelled against originally. Today California is in a mood to rebel against suggested taxation without deliberation.

Everybody has a tax plan, some sure-fire scheme to wipe out the state's deficit in jig time and lift the tax burden from all the people simultaneously, as if by magic. And everyone, it seems, would like to get his scheme on the ballot for November.

Now there may be germs of sound ideas in many of these, but it will take a lot of deliberation, a lot of expert probing to incorporate any of them into any sane revision of the state's tax structure.

This gross transactions tax you have heard about, for example, which would tax a product every time it changed hands, all the way from farm through factory, wholesaler and retailer, to the public.

The disturbing thing at the moment is not how good or bad this might be, but that there has been talk of drawing up such a plan hastily, and putting initiative petitions in circulation. Controller Ray L. Riley first proposed the tax, and it has been pushed by large movie producers and others led by Byron Hanna, Los Angeles attorney.

Of all the plan's intricacies, little is yet understood, but surely it would be one of the most sweeping taxation changes California ever attempted. At least it should have careful outlining, study, and legislative consideration, rather than being thrown at the voters now for a snap "yes" or "no" vote.

We've had plenty of taxation troubles in California. It would scarcely seem wise to invite invite more through "taxation without deliberation."

MARKS RANCH

James Allen, who is in charge of operations at the Marks property on Cement Hill northwest of Nevada City, states everything is in shape to start sinking at once. The men developing this property have worked hard since taking it over a few weeks ago. They have put up a hoist and installed a pump, after drifting for some distance on the ledge to determine that the ore carried good values.

Slot Machines

(As it is in Sierra county and as it ain't in Nevada county).

Approximately nine years ago we came into Sierra county and found many slot machines which were being played by men, women and children. When we came here to take over the paper we found that the slot machines had disappeared. We recently saw a prominent gambler from northern California in Downieville. He went to the sheriff's office and tried to put the machines back in the county. He was told what to do with the machines, and his business. Sheriff Johnson deserves a great deal of redit for keeping slot machines out of Sierra county.—Editorial in Downieville Mountain Messenger.

CHERRY FESTIVALERS AT M'VILLE STAMPEDE

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, so believe the Cherry Festivalers of North San Juan. Sunday a group of them left North San Juan at 7:30 in the morning all decked out in their 49er whiskers and accompanied by the car and amplifier of Leo Clarkson. They came to Nevada City where they were joined by a group at Nevada City people and all journeyed to Grass Valley to join the caravan to Marysville to attend the Stampede there.

Ostensibly they took the trip to advertise the coming Cherry Carnival at San Juan but they managed to see all the stampede doings and 'tis said that they enjoyed a gay party at the Star Cafe in Marysville.

Among those going were: Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Clarkson, Leo Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller and daughter, Mrs. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. R. Stebbins, Stanley Bice, Lena Deneka, Louis Sorenson, Mrs. Haslett, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Proom, Mr. Glen Cleland, Mike Dennis Mark Van Kleat, Joe Fogarty, Walter McCullough, Gordon Woods and others.

AUBURN'S GRAND MARSHAL TO BE FREMONT SCION

AUBURN, June 4.—Benton Freemont of Mariposa, grandson of the late General John C. Fremont, pioneer military leader, who helped make California a part of the United States, yesterday accepted the invitation of James A. Nealis, chairman of the Auburn Gold Rush Revival, June 6 and 7, to serve as the grand marshall in Saturday's parade.

The parade, arranged by a committee headed by Wendell T. Robie, will exemplify much of the historical development of the Mother Lode, as well as the progress made in the revival of the gold mining industry during the past year.

Governor Frank F. Merriam of California has accepted an invitation to lead the parade, scheduled for ten Saturday morning.

S. P. TO PUT ON S. F. TO CHICAGO STREAMLINER

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Clearing the way for operation of the streamliner "City of San Francisco", scheduled to enter service between San Francisco and Chicago about June 14, Southern Pacific is completing a $100,000 job of track and signal work on its line to Ogden, Utah.

Work is also being rushed on the installation of special facilities at the railroad's West Alameda shops for servicing the streamliner, according to J. H. Dyer, vice president of the company, in charge of operation.

The changes in track construction are being made, Dyer said, to insure safe and comfortable riding at high speeds around curves. Easement spirals are being lengthened on many curves on the line between San Francisco and Ogden.

Signal work consists of moving out distant signals and extending highway crossing protection circuits, on account of the great speed of the streamliner, which is capable of traveling more than 100 miles an hour. In addition to the signal equipment, a number of scientifically designed safety devices are being installed.

Facilities in course of installation at West Alameda shops will have to do with pre-cooling the tran, charging its batteries and providing it with fuel. Extensive drop pits and machinery for removing trucks, the wheels and motors for repair and maintenance are included in the specifications, according to the announcement.

The streamliner will operate on a 39¾ hour schedule between San Francisco and Chicago, cutting about 19 hours from the fastest time now made on the run, it was stated.

PISTOL RANGE PRACTICE

The Sierra-Nevada county peace officers association have just completed their pistol range at Hills Flat and held their first shoot last Friday. Sierra county officers won over the local peace officers with Johnson of Downieville being high marksman. The last meeting was held on the range near Downieville. Keen interest is being manifested in the practices and it is felt much good can result from the training.

WEEKLY COMMENT BY Christian Andersen

Behind the news story of any tragic event there is in almost all cases some intimate, sometimes beautiful sentiment, as in the case when young Lantz Harlow was killed recently near Downieville. As the car careened over the side of the road down to the fearful rocks below, young Harlow was thrown out head first and instantly killed. Miss Clarice Kelton his companion and the driver of the ill fated car went further down the terrible declivity and was thrown out sustaining a double fracture of the pelvis. When she finally became conscious she started to walk up the river because her father had told her that if she were ever lost to walk up stream and she would eventually come to some habitation. In the semiconscious condition this bit of advice stood out clearly and she did just that, in the dark and cold she walked into the river several times and bruised herself in falling as she proceeded. Soon came full consciousness and the realization that she must get up to the road to get help. She started up the steep side of the road fill and when half way up nearly gave up in despair. She said that in this mental condition it occurred to her to pray and having uttered a few words in supplication, she seemed strengthened and finally in terrible pain she gained the top. She was picked up by a motorist. Miss Kelton is recovering at her mother's home in Petaluma.

William Hearst is ghosting another political presidential aspirant. With unerring stupidity Hearst is foisting presidential hopes on the very fine governor of Kansas, but very evidently not at all of presidential size. If the generalizations of Landon could be taken as wisdom then all would be well, but unfortunately his statements are vague and unimpressive. If and maybe the new deal is all wrong, but from any source there has been nothing substantial which can be substituted. Unfortunately the political disease from which we suffer is deeper rooted than many suspect and cannot be cured by quackery or makeshift temporary ideas.

Certainly it would be easy enough to collect the immense amount of funds necessary to make the Townsend plan solvent. The stupendous task of administering such vast amounts of money would not be possible with any of the present political machinery and with the further pyramid of bureaus we should be crushed with snoopers, agents, private pryers and the like. We should see such grafting as would make any previous attempt at grafting seem petty. Rather make the monthly stipend to be dispensed of such dimensions that it could be easily handled. Inasmuch as the average workers wage throughout the U. S. is at present $540, a year, it does not take much arithmetic to figure that if that sum were doubled it would make life easy enough for many people.

In a friendly conversation with an educated man the other day the subject turned to religion and he claimed a devoutness second to none. The fly in the ointment was that he did not understand that devotion is accomplished involuntarily with the heart and soul, not with talk or even too much reason. Devotion is the divine spark; talk cannot explain the phenomena. No amount of argument can dispel it. Devotion is the living evidence of the ethereal some thing which we are taugh to believe is the divine ingredient of every human.

HI MUSICIANS GIVE SCHOOL KIDS A TREAT

A small but representative group of students from the Nevada City high school presented a program for the Washington grammar school yesterday. The program was given chiefly as a gesture of good-will to the graduating class, who will be freshmen next year. Both the graduating class and the seventh grade class were present, however.

The program, which was well received by the pupils, consisted of a saxophone solo by Marlin Young, a group of songs by the high school chorus under the direction of Mrs. Libbey, a clarinet solo by Miss Evelin Bailey, and a one act play, "Frenzied Finance". The cast of characters in the play included Walter Warnecke, John Radich, Clem Organ, and Tom Rickard. Miss Evelin Lotts accompanied both of the soloists and the chorus at the piano.

FEARLESS—ALMOST

(By FRANCIS BRADFORD

I have sailed the stormy seas and have stood my watch with ease
In a hurricane that stripped the blasted deck,
And I've tramped the tropic lands and the burning sands,
And I've taken every God-forbidden trek;
Sure, I've splashed through muddy swamp where the alligators romp,
And the crocs with dripping jaws await to kill;
But though I go far and near, the one human thing I fear
Is the dentist with his buzzing, grating, drill.

Earthquakes, fire and thunderstorm help to keep my life in form,
And I fear no flood or famine in the land;
These are things that I can fight with my brain and brawn and might—
These are enemies that I can understand;
Wars are holidays for me, battleship or infantry,
Or a bloomin' gunners post away up high;
But the boy who wears me out, makes me cry and groan and shout,
Is that drilling, yell-producing dentist guy.

Give me cannon-fire and shot, chain me fast and let me rot,
Or I'll fight three bulls at once if you desire;
Pin me down with iron stakes, fill my bed with rattlesnakes,
If you like, I'll do a jig in Hade's fire;
Make me live on crusts of bread, stand me days upon my head,
And I'll show you I can stand such tortures well,
But on bended knee I pray, keep me forty states away
From the dentist with his boring tools of Hell!

LIFE GUARD ARRIVES TO OPEN POOL IN PARK

Verle Gray, who will be manager and life guard of the swimming pool in Pioneers Park this summer, arrived today to get the pool in order for the season. The park commission plans to empty the pool twice a week this summer, probably Sunday and Thursday nights. Whether the pool will be opened Sunday or Monday will depend somewhat upon weather conditions, but the first warm day it is planned to throw the pool open. The park commission hopes that next year it may be able to paint the bottom of the pool white and to install a chlorinator to aid in destroying the algae which flourishes best in open air pools.

The seventh grade pupils of Washingtoan school entertained their teacher, Mrs. Mabel Flint, with a surprise party Tuesday evening.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Miss Lavon Gates and Elton Tobiassen of Nevada City will be on the Whiskerino ladies night dance program at Lake Olympia this evening as tap dancers.

E. F. O'Rourke has just returned from a trip through Nevada and Arizona. While in Nevada he visited a partner in some of his mining activities, and brought some likely specimens of ore from properties in which he is interested. Among other specimens is one of celite, a mineral which is used in fine bearings, another of lead and graphite and a third of silver, gold and copper, which at present yields an assay of over $8 across a 4½ foot breast.

Mr. Joseph Day of Gold Flat, who paid an official visit to Yountville last week end, stated he saw Mr. Harry Parsons and that he was getting along nicely. Mr. Parsons said to tell everyone hello and that he may come up on a furlough before long.

FINGERLING FISH ARE PLANTED IN COUNTY STREAMS

Mr. A. H. Willard, captain of Fish and Game Commission, who resides in Nevada City, is supervising planting fingerling trout in the local streams. Last Wednesday he was in charge of planting 15,000 in Deer Creek and 10,000 in the North Fork of Deer Creek. These tiny fish are from the Yuba hatchery near Camptonville. Some trout have been planted on the South Fork of the Yuba river above Washington and another lot on the same river near Cisco. They were shipped from the Shasta hatchery.

Captain Willard received 36,000 rainbow trout eggs at the Nevada City Narrow Gauge depot Wednesday. These eggs were taken at Shackle on Beaver Creek in northern California, and were shipped from the Mt. Shasta hatchery. They are eyed eggs and were taken to the Yuba hatchery to be planted from there. The Yuba hatchery has about a million trout capacity. Fish are being held in this hatchery for Lakes Faucherie, Bowman, and Milton, and Jackson Meadows. The roads to these sections still being blocked with snow. Lake Bowman is reached by steep Henes Pass route. As soon as the tiny trout are planted from the Yuba hatchery Captain Willard will take trout from the Shasta hatchery. He stated fishermen are walking over snow for a distance of about twelve miles in order to fish in Bowman Lake.

Last year there were about 3,000,000 fingerling trout planted in the streams in Mr. Willard's territory. He was in charge of five counties last year and has been given four more, having the following to patrol: Glenn, Butte, Sierra, Colusa, Sutter, Yuba, Nevada, Placer and ElDorado.

The Mrs. Myra E. Lollritz of Clear Lake, Lake County and Mrs. Ann Pohlabeln of San Francisco were Nevada City visitors Wednesday. Mrs. Lollritz is president of the Clear Lake Highland Woman's Club. The ladies came here to see the historic town and buildings.

QUARRY AND HARD ROCK MINERS IN DRILL RACE

AUBURN, June 4.—Can a granite quarry hand driller work faster than a hard rock miner?

The question will be answered at the Auburn Gold Rush Revival June 6 and 7 when Louis Hebuck, veteran of the Rocklin quarries, which yielded much granite for some of California's early buildings, opposes several expert hard rock drillers in a competition arranged by John H. Robinson. There will also be a competition for machine drillers from the Mother Lode districts.

Story of Old Gold And Crimson Conifers

(By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE)

From the veranda of the historic Mammoth Tree Hotel one may look down into the cedar shaded meadow across which Dowd trailed the wounded deer that led him on to discover the mamoth trees. This lovely meadow is set aside for public camping grounds where modern improvements, abundance of fire-wood and cold spring water make of it a place of perfect enjoyment. On the edge of the camp now stands one solitary sequoia just outside the main group. His majesty is called "Old Dowd" and as he stands there alone and reflective he gives the impression of world weariness or perhaps loneliness for his pre-historic friends.

Tourists from all parts of the continent continue the Big Tree Pilgrimage following the setting sun and inspiring scenic routes to Carson City, Nevada and Markleville, up through Ebbet's Pass, across Big Meadows, and down to the famous grove. The old Markleville emigrant road from Nevada is now a splendid highway and follows very closely the general course of the emigrant trail. Keen eyed motorists will notice the worn stretches of the old trail but nature is slowly erasing all traces and reclaiming it with grass, shrubs and trees.

From the Mammoth Tree grove a county road branches off a few miles to Sonora, Tuolumne County, an old mining town. The historic buildings still standing are old the City Hotel, M. E. Church built in 1852 and the Wells Fargo building. One mile north of Sonora a road leads to Springfield and Columbia passing through the site of Squabbletown. At Springfield the old school house is still standing. At Columbia is St. Ann's Catholic church still standing on rich pay dirt but the ground all around it is prospected and sluiced away.

Nearby is Jamestown which in the old days was called Jimtown. Table Mountain lies behind Jamestown. "I come from Table Mountain," said "Truthful James." who tells the tale of the "Heathen Chinee, Ah Sin," for ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain," in the poem by Bret Harte entitled "Plain Language from Truthful James." "Truthful James" Giles actually lived on Jaskass Hill and as the owner of it he appears in Mark Twain's "The Sage of Jackass Hill."

Traveling along an historic as well as scenic highway rich with romance and legend the traveler will ride for a full day and still find the country and the towns fascinating almost beyond description. North of Sacramento is El Dorado formerly called Mud Springs. A Spanish place name meaning the "gilded man." Nearby is Placerville, El Dorado county formerly "Hangtown." It came into existence in 1848. The grewsome appelation is said to have been given to the diggings after the hanging of several desperadoes to a tree. "Hangtown" was the destination of Horace Greeley who was driven in.to the town by "Hank" Monk the stage driver, at breakneck speed Monk was the original of one of the characters in the story, "Ropghing It." written by Mark Twain. The old town has an atmosphere of age. Its main street retains many of the buildings erected in early days. The Carey House where Horace Greeley, then a candidate for the presidency, lodged in 1859 and from the veranda of which he addressed the miners, is now known as the Placerville Hotel.

Just outside of Placerville is the monument to the pioneers, commemorating the robbery of two coaches of the stage running between Virginia City, Nevada, and Sacramento on the night of June 30, 1864. The legend reads: "Eight sacks of bullion and a treasure chest was taken. The leader of the gang represented that the money was to be used for the purpose of recruiting for the Confederate service In attempting to capture the bandits a battle took place at Somerset in which one deputy was killed and another badly wounded. Thomas Poole, one of the bandits, was captured and on September 28, 1865, was executed at Placerville."

Among the early settlers was J. M. Studebaker, a wheelwright, who, instead of digging for gold, stuck to his trade and thus obtained the nucleus for the foundation of a factory which he started in conjunction with his brothers at South Ben, Indiana, for the manufacture of wagons and buggies. With the advent of the automobile the Studebakers became the distributors, through their wagon and buggy connections for the car built by E. M. Flanders. Eventually they bought out Flanders and started manufacturing care fo rthemselves, changing the name to Studebaker.

The Placerville road lies over the route of the old Pony Express. In 1860 Harry Roff made the initial run from Sacramento to Placerville in two hours and forty five minutes.

Coloma, El Dorado county is on the South Fork of the American river. Here in 1848 James Marshall made the discovery of gold which made California known to the world. Half a mile from the spit marking the place he lies buried in his monument, a bronze statue mounted on a granite base. Some distance below it lies the cabin he built. On the main street of the little town is the first bank a small stone building with iron shuttered windows and door. Twenty one miles farther north is Auburn in Placer county. In 1848 it was known as North Fork Dry Diggings. It was renamed in 1949 by H. M. House, Auburn, after the town of his birth in New York state. The old town was built in the Ravine and still retains a few of its old buildings.

From Auburn the highway, with many a twist, and bend, delves deeper and deeper into the fothills. Not once does this hilly country take on the aspect of rugged majestic mountains. Instead, as far as the eye can see, there are only the low rounded tops of the pine crested foothills almost monotonous in their constant similarity. Up hill and down; over grassy gullies and across slopes of rusty red the highway meanders and finally loses itself in the busy thoroughfares of Grass Valley.

This is a center of modern gold mining but is an old time mining town rich with history and memories of 1849. Rough and Ready is but a short distance from Grass Valley on the road to Marysville. The latter gave its name to Bret Harte's tale "The Millionaire of Rough and Ready." In the spring of 1849 a dozen covered wagons pulled slowly up the road from Marysville to the gold diggings. Each wagon bore the legend "Rough and Ready Company, Shellburg, Wisconsin." They were named after President Zachary Taylor, whose sobriquet it was. The caravan halted on Squirrel Creek and founded the roaring camp of Rough and Ready.

The diggings were unusually rich, Rough and Ready was in a district that was fruitful in pocket mines, and no richer placers existed in California. The town sprang up overnight and in the November elections in 1850 Rough and Ready polled one thousand votes. In the same district were the mining camps of Rich Flat, Landers Bar. Kentucky Flat, Allison Ranch, and Randolph Flat. Less than ten miles away the county seat, Nevada City, was booming from her rich placers; while halfway between, the little struggling camp that is today Grass Valley, was known only as Centerville, because it was half way between the two great placer camps.

THE FIRST TELEPHONE LINE

In 1857, even after a disastrous fire, Rough and Ready was a thriving town and proudly boasted several streets.

And like all overgrown communities suffered the usual growing pains. By September, 1850, the Southern element was in strong control, while over at Nevada City the majority of the population were abolitionists. On the 9th of September California was admitted to the Union, free and anti-slavery. The news was a crushing blow to Rough and Ready. Immediately a mass meeting was called. The miners dropped their picks and pans and hurried into town. Strong addresses to uphold the honor of the South, and the Slave States, found willing listeners. Resolutions were drawn up, and Declaration of Independence of the City and Township were adopted and ratified amid the wildest enthusiasm. Rough and Ready had seceded from California and the Union! This historic event was immediately celebrated at all the bars of the roaring mining town.

Up the road at Nevada City, a day of unrest was spent. The wild rumors of the proceedings at Rough and Ready filled the air. As night came, the messengers brought the tidings, apprehension set in. The Confederates were marching up the road to capture the stronghold of Abolition. To combat them, Vigilantes were organized and sentinels posted up and down the road. A night guard, wide awake and fully armed guarded the rocky road and was prepared for the worst.

But nothing unusual happened.

The next day Nevada City continued with her usual occupations and the majority of the citizens of Rough and Ready suffered a big head and hangover. And so ended the bloodless secession of Rough and Ready from the Union. It antidated South Carolina by ten years.

The highway through these historic towns turned and twisted alarmingly but as it leaves Nevada City it appears to actually squirm before one's eyes. In and out around hair pin turns; up and down over horse-shoe curves it bends double over itself and never for a moment runs the length of a city block without a bend of some description. After climbing from the canyon of the South Yuba there is another sudden turn and the surprised motorist finds himself in the center of historic North San Juan.

This town is now shrunken and old. Several of its old buildings are roofless and the iron doors sag on rusty hinges. On one corner there is a fine example of the work of the early bricklayers. The building during the gold rush days was a sombre bank building. It has arched doorways and windows, the ornamentation being obtained by moulded bricks projecting course over course. There is also an interesting frieze around the building of dental ornament, also obtained by projecting arrangement of bricks.

The camp that was to later become the city of North San Juan was started in 1851 on the high Ridge between the South and Middle Yuba Rivers. Here were situated the greatest and richest ancient river gravel channels, to mine which the practice known as "hydraulic mining" was applied, with most profitable results. The waters of the forks of the Yuba were diverted in long ditch systems, then thrown against the high gravel banks under heavy pressure, through six-inch monitors. The huge gravel banks were toppled over and washed down miles of great sluices where the gold was recovered; then on down into canyons where the "tailings" as they were called, were carried down by winter floods into the great valley below. Here the fine silt buried the farms and ranches and the coarse portions filled the navigable rivers. This led to bitter litigation, resulting in 1885, in a decision which terminated the entire industry. Thousands of hard-working miners were thrown out of employment, an industry that produced fifteen millions of dollars in gold annually was ruined, and an investment of thirty million dollars in mines, ditches and towns wiped out. And the ancient "diggins" of North San Juan, this very day, contain enough gold to completely end the depression if hydraulic mining were permitted.

. . . but whether he'll quench his thirst is his affair.

It's the same with the freighting business. We try to "sell" our idea of Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad transportation service. Our sales ability depends entirely upon the loyalty and "love-for-home" attitude of Grass Valley and Nevada City users of freighing ways and means. We've never entertained high pressure tactics. Nor has the Narrow Gauge been crammed down unwilling throats.

The generous support that this Railroad receives is gratifying. It pleases us to think that our sincere efforts to make friends has not gone unrewarded. It encourages us to give a still greater and broader service as our gesture of appreciation for the faith entrusted in us.

Since time immemorial the success of one business has depended greatly upon the success of others. The Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad has ever urged the development and growth of Grass Valley and Nevada City. It has helped in the pioneering of new fields of industry and commercial trading. And for its untiring efforts this Railroad only asks that it share, to an extent, in the reflected prosperity that hems the gown of Progress.

PITFALLS AWAIT VETERANS WITH BONUS TO SPEND

High praise for the editorial attitude of California newspapers in their attempts to safeguard bonus funds soon to be received by veterans was voiced yesterday by Frank N. Belgrano, Past National Commander of the American Legion and Vice President of Bank of America.

"Within the next two weeks California veterans will receive well over $120,000,000 in cash and government bonds," said Belgrano, "Since it was first announced that this money would be available, the veteran has been deluged with advice on how to spend his back pay.

"Unquestionably there are many opportunities for veterans to employ their funds constructively, but for every such opportunity there are a dozen chances for him to part with it without getting a thing to show for it.

"In pointing out to veterans the pitfalls laid in their paths by sharpers, and other racketeers, the newspapers of California have done a commendable piece of work.

"They have also performed meritorious service for the legitimate business interests of California, who provide the veterans and all other Californians with full value received for their money.

"In the deluge of opportunities to spend which is now being showered on the veterans of California, it is difficult to avoid snap judgment that may be costly. The newspapers have sounded the right note when they tell the veterans to "Stop—Look—Listen."
